Leading System Change Guidance from two of the world's leading authorities on school leadership

- ✓ Gain a deep, practical understanding of how to thrive in the new era of leadership
- ✓ Address the three biggest leadership dilemmas:
 - accountability
 - policy overload
 - sustainability
- ✓ See workable, world-researched sessions on:
 - securing accountability
 - embedding change
 - leading learning
 - becoming a system player
- ✓ Collaborate, with more autonomy from bureaucracy and less autonomy from each other

Professors Michael Fullan and Andy Hargreaves Wednesday 15th March 2017, Middlesbrough Football Club

Michael and Andy are one of the most influential pairings in global education.

Individually they advise policy-makers and school leaders around the world, helping them to achieve the moral purpose of education.

At this event, they will combine their global knowledge and experience to help schools navigate the new landscape. Utilise the ongoing policy of decentralisation to reduce bureaucracy, increase autonomy and move beyond the preoccupations with measured achievement alone.

Use policy decisions to create a great profession for all teachers, rather than allowing policy to make teaching robotic and unexciting.

This training is:

- ✓ Ideas-driven
- ✓ Evidence-based
- ✓ Strategically powerful
